Henson Sentenced To Dannemora Prison In Valley Farm Action

Richard Henson, convicted of arson, third degree, sentenced to prison from 2 1/2 to five years—other matters.

Richard Henson, ex-postmaster and station agent at Phoenicia, was sentenced Monday afternoon to an indeterminate term of from 2 1/2 to five years in Clinton State Prison at Dannemora following his conviction last week of arson, third degree, for the firing of the Eugene Gormley summer boarding house just west of Phoenicia village, on the night of March 27, 1932. After a trial which lasted several days the jury found Henson guilty of the crime charged, that of burning Valley Farm.

At the opening of county court Monday afternoon, ex-Mayor Palmer A. Canfield, Jr., moved to set aside the verdict of the jury on the grounds that the verdict was against the law and the evidence and on the grounds that facts sufficient to connect the defendant with the crime had not been brought out by the prosecution. Mr. Canfield stated specifically that there had been no testimony offered to show ownership of the building. "So far as that is concerned," the defendant himself might have been the owner of the building," said Mr. Canfield.

Judge Traver's attention was called to testimony of Trooper Metzger and Herbert Segelken, who both testified the property destroyed belonged to Eugene Gormley. District Attorney Murray stated that there had been evidence given by witnesses and while it was true that no record of ownership had been offered, the defense's counsel had not objected to the offer of proof of ownership as it was brought out. There had been no objection to the testimony of these witnesses as to the ownership of the place.

Judge Traver stated that his recollection was that there had been some testimony by witnesses as to the ownership although no record had been offered. He denied the motion to set aside the verdict.

District Attorney Murray then moved judgment of the court.

Before the court pronounced sentence, Mr. Canfield addressed the court at some length. He said that throughout the trial there had been an attempt to evoke the sympathy of the court or jury. Mr. Henson had taken the stand alone in his own behalf and told his story and since the trial Mr. Henson had said that he had received a fair trial at the hands of the court, the district attorney and the jury. Mr. Canfield further stated that at present the law provided for a sentence up to 15 years for arson, third degree. This sentence he said he considered excessive for the crime. At the recent conference of the district attorneys of the state a resolution had been adopted and would be presented to the present legislature suggesting that the maximum sentence for arson, third degree, be reduced from fifteen to five years. Since the district attorneys of the state believed that the present term of 15 years was too much Mr. Canfield said that he believed he was justified in bringing that matter to the court's attention.

State of Mind

He then referred to a state of mind which he said appeared to exist in the county. He said that it seemed that in the county when a defendant entered a plea of not guilty and stood trial there was a belief that the defendant on being found guilty after trial should be given a more severe sentence than if a plea of guilty was entered and the county saved the expense of trial. This he said was unconstitutional. Henson's defense he said justified his plea of not guilty. The fact that the jury had remained out for practically the entire afternoon before a verdict could be arrived at indicated that the defense's story had merit. Also the fact that the jury had come in for instruction and a review of certain testimony indicated that Henson's defense was justified and had created a question in the minds of the jurors. He said that he had expected the prosecution to put on certain rebuttal witnesses and he had hoped by cross-examination of those witnesses to disprove certain things which Charles McGrath had testified to in regard to how the building was fired. The fact that no witnesses were put on in rebuttal by the prosecution had led Mr. Canfield to say that the construction of the Valley Farm House was such that the building could not have been fired in the manner McGrath said. He also said that he had not known until after the trial that Henson's fingerprints had been taken after he arrived at the jail. This also would have been taken advantage of had he known. He said that although the bottle of gasoline offered in evidence had been found near the house on the night of the fire and according to the prosecution's witnesses had been handled by Henson no fingerprints were found on the bottle. Mr. Canfield asked the court to take into consideration the fact that the defendant had been in jail now over 10 months in pronouncing sentence.

Judge Traver before sentencing Mr. Henson said that he had known Henson and liked him. It was a difficult task to pronounce sentence and he would rather some other judge could do it. After the trial the jury in an unofficial communication had recommended leniency, this and the fact that the district attorney did not recommend a heavy sentence would be taken into consideration. Also Henson's health he said he was

Judge Loughran Denies Application

Supreme Court Judge John T. Loughran Monday afternoon denied the application of the Cohoes Taxpayers' Association for a peremptory mandamus against the mayor, city clerk, board of public works and other officials to compel them to permit inspection of public records in an independent audit of the city's financial records. The matter was presented at the regular special term here on Friday.

Since the mandamus action was commenced the state comptroller has undertaken an audit and Judge Loughran denied the taxpayers' application without prejudice to renew the application later when the comptroller has concluded the inspection. The application was denied on the grounds of inconvenience which a double inspection at this time would cause. Two agencies could not review the books at the same time.

Attorney W. H. Wertine, Jr., counsel for the taxpayers' association, has announced his intention to appeal.

Monday Club Held Regular Session

The Monday Club met on Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. A. V. Kenyon on Fair street. In the absence of both the president and vice-president, Mrs. William M. Davis, the treasurer, presided. A letter was read from Mrs. Philip Elting, who was unable to be present, inviting the Monday Club to hold its next meeting at her home on Maiden Lane on Monday, February 20 at 3:30 o'clock, to hear her friend, Mrs. Thomas C. Desmond give a talk on her travels in South America. Each club member was asked to notify Mrs. Elting, not later than February 15 of her acceptance of the invitation.

A brief report of Federation matters was given by Mrs. Reed, who reminded the club members of the meeting of the Common Council tonight.

Mrs. Kenyon presented, as the guests of the afternoon, Miss Pettigell of The Lowell Club and Miss Hasbrouck of The Twentieth Century Club. The study topic for the Monday Club this year has been, "The World of Today." Taking note of the fact that both of the guests had presented interesting papers on Mexico at their own club meetings, Mrs. Kenyon had invited them to read those papers as pertinent to a full consideration of "The World of Today."

Miss Pettigell told most interestingly of the early history of life in Mexico, and Miss Hasbrouck brought the subject down to the present time covering various phases of life in present-day Mexico. The two valuable papers were given added interest by the various scenic cards and pictures of Mexico which Miss Hasbrouck brought to the club. The afternoon was fully appreciated by the Monday Club members who expressed their enjoyment and their feeling of gratification over the community of interest shown between the three clubs.

Junior League to Learn Government

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 7 (AP)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt today prepared to introduce 16 New York city Junior League members to the intricacies of state government in a hurried trip through the New York State Capitol and skyscraper office buildings.

Mrs. Roosevelt and her party made up of graduates of Todhunter School who are enrolled in a course she teaches in government and current events, arrived in Albany early last night in time to visit the Legislature in session.

This will be one of the last classes Mrs. Roosevelt will teach for she has announced that she will give up teaching March 4 when her husband is inaugurated president. While Mr. Roosevelt was governor, Mrs. Roosevelt each year invited the class to Albany and entertained them at the executive mansion.

Suggest "Lump" Sum Payment to Settle English Debt to U. S.

London, Feb. 7 (AP)—Reliable sources had put their stamp of authority today on reports that Great Britain would seek to settle the American war debt immediately with a single payment.

The new British Debt Commission was expected to offer flat payment of about one-third of the sum now allocated for settlement in the next 50 years.

The plan, frequently suggested in the past, appeared to have emerged from the field of speculation simultaneously with the arrival of Sir Ronald Lindsay, British ambassador to the United States, who came here for the express purpose of enlightening the British cabinet on the debts views of President-elect Roosevelt, with whom he talked recently on plans for the forthcoming debt conference in Washington.

New Development

A new development today was the information that Mr. Ronald would not return to Washington for three weeks. It had been thought he would hurry back to Washington at the end of this week, and his failure to do so revived the possibility that Sir Ronald would be a member of the British commission.

The proposal for an immediate settlement of the debt, as explained in well-informed quarters, would mean an offer of outright payment of $1,250,000,000 to $2,000,000,000. The present outstanding debt is about $4,302,458,000. Great Britain has paid $2,007,348,238, most of this before the 1923 British Debt Commission obtained the new funding agreement under which $4,500,000,000 was to be paid over a period of 62 years.

This plan would be literally in line with the declaration of Neville Chamberlain, British Chancellor of the Exchequer, who asserted that an agreement reached with the United States must be final.

Financed by Bonds

A flat payment could be financed by flotation of British government bonds in the United States, thereby avoiding the immediate transfer of a large sum to the United States.

The financial editor of the London Herald said it was almost certain that the lower the United States would be raised to make one final payment. The proceeds, under the plan, would be handed over to the United States, with Great Britain being responsible for interest and sinking fund payments.

Declaring the United States already has more gold than she knows what to do with, Mr. Chamberlain said any further shipments of gold from here were out of the question.

While it was generally considered that Mr. Chamberlain spoke the views of Premier Ramsay MacDonald and the cabinet, it was said today that the arrival of Sir Ronald would end the chancellor's outspoken debt discussions.

Lord Tyrrell, the ambassador to France, also was back in London today, but he has not yet joined in the "Big Five" conversations. If he is needed to transmit French views on the debt question he will be available. The idea of a united Franco-British front apparently fell through with the French default of its December payment to the United States.

MRS. GEARY IGNORES

TOKIO DIVORCE ACTION

New York, Feb. 7 (AP)—Attorneys for Mrs. John Richard Geary, ignoring a divorce granted her husband Friday by a Tokyo court, announced today they would move for the appointment of a referee to determine what property Geary had in New York state at the time Mrs. Geary commenced suit for legal separation.

Edward D. Bolton of the law firm that filed the suit for Mrs. Geary said an attempt would be made to fix responsibility for the alleged removal of Geary's holdings here, as well as to ascertain if any of his property remained in the state.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Geary is receiving, under court order, a monthly sum of more than $700 which is set aside by the General Electric Company as a pension for her husband. Geary was president of the General Electric Company of Japan and Far Eastern representative of the domestic concern.

DECREASE IN AUTO TRAFFIC

ON ROUTE TO MOUNTAIN

Shokan, Feb. 7.—The marked decrease in automobile traffic on the north boulevard since the first of the year is being felt by the gas station proprietors all along the line on the route from Kingston to the mountains. The failure of many car owners to take out new licenses is said to account for this scarcity of pleasure vehicles on the roads, and the opinion is currently expressed that there will also be a large number of trucks placed in cold storage when the licenses on these cars have to be renewed in March. There appears to have been no let-up in the volume of heavy trucking business, however, especially in the milk, produce and gasoline lines.

Hungarian Statesman Dead

Geneva, Switz., Feb. 7 (AP)—Count Albert Apponyi, Hungarian statesman, died here today after a brief illness. He was 77.

State Grange Head Asks Sensible Stand On Repeal Question

Fred J. Freestone Addresses New York State Grange on Prohibition Question, Opposes Sales Tax and Advocates a Graduated Income Tax.

Geneva, N. Y., Feb. 7 (AP)—Faced with the most vexatious problems in the history of their organization, more than 2,000 delegates and members of the New York State Grange gathered today at the gavel fell promptly at 9 o'clock, opening the 60th annual meeting of the patrons of husbandry.

Outlining the work of the Grange during the past year and sketching the economic conditions that will make a "genuine test of the value of organized agriculture," the address of state master Fred J. Freestone of Interlaken, followed a partial report of the credentials committee.

He described as "an insult to intelligence" any suggestion that legalized beer would create a greater market for the farmer's grain.

More grain, he said, is being used to produce the increased amount of milk being consumed since prohibition went into effect than was used to produce all beer prior to the 18th Amendment.

The Grange head has been a friend and adviser of Mr. Roosevelt. The former New York governor named him to several state commissions, including the New York power authority.

Of prohibition, Freestone said: "Our duty is clear; we must oppose any repeal or change in the 18th amendment that does not make for true temperance. x x x"

"We should prepare for the greatest educational program in our homes, churches and schools ever devised to point out the harmful effects of alcohol and narcotics."

He called upon Grange members to oppose a state or federal general sales tax.

Such a tax, he said, takes "tribute of the poor man's pennies." He advocated a graduated income tax as "the fairest of all taxes."

Following the noon recess, officers' reports were to start the afternoon session, at which E. A. Bates, adviser in Indian extension, and Dean C. E. Ladd, of the College of Agriculture, Cornell University, were to speak.

The election of a member of the executive committee and a roll call of resolutions without debate were scheduled.

Stolen Warship Heads For Harbor

Batavia, Java, Feb. 7 (AP)—Chased by warships, submarines and flying boats, the fugitive Dutch cruiser De Zeeven Provincien, with native mutineers in control, was west of Nias Island today, making for the Java naval base at Surabaya.

The ship, on which the natives, mostly Sumatrans, kidnapped eight of their Dutch officers after a dispute over pay, was proceeding at a speed of seven knots, apparently economizing on fuel.

The government steamer Eridanus last night replaced the government vessel Aldebaran, which was running short of fuel, in the chase and there was little fear now that the Zeven would escape. The commander of the Dutch cruiser was ashore when the natives stole his ship. He immediately put one after them in the Aldebaran.

In the meantime, flying boats entered the race, taking on fuel at Priok Harbor and proceeding under secret orders. Two submarines and the mine layer Gouden Leeuw also joined the pursuit.

Additional wireless messages from the Zeven indicated the mutineers were going to adhere to their promise to bring the cruiser into Surabaya harbor.

One message said they would surrender the ship to the commander a day before reaching there.

Theodore Bell Sent To Jail

Theodore Bell, 34, was arrested Monday evening at the residence of Mrs. Jennie Hughes of 451 Washington avenue, who charged Bell with disorderly conduct. It developed that Bell was a former boarder at the house but had left about two weeks ago. Mrs. Hughes claimed that Bell came back Monday night and used profane language and knocked on the door and that he attempted to remove a cellar window.

Bell when arraigned before Judge Culliton in police court this morning pled guilty to the charge and was sentenced to 30 days in the county jail.

After a hearing in police court John Schick, who was charged by Mrs. Frances Metaling, with disorderly conduct, was discharged by Judge Culliton.

Bishop of Indianapolis

Valencia City, Feb. 7 (AP)—Pope Pius today nominated Father Elmer J. Ritter, of Indianapolis, auxiliary bishop of Indianapolis.

Senate Committee Votes For Removal Of David S. Barry

Veteran Senate Sergeant-at-Arms Expected to be Removed for Magazine Article Concerning Bribery in Congress.

Washington, Feb. 7 (AP)—Immediate removal of David S. Barry as Senate sergeant-at-arms for writing in a magazine article that some members of Congress accept bribes was recommended today by the Senate judiciary committee.

The case comes up in the Senate automatically late this afternoon for final determination.

It was generally conceded the committee's recommendation would be adopted; Barry already being under suspension.

A motion by Senator Robinson (R., Ind.), to recommend permitting the 75-year-old officer to resign was rejected by a vote of 11 to 4.

Immediately prior to the drastic committee action, Professor William C. Johnstone, of George Washington University here, had denied reports that he had taught his political science students there was corruption among the national legislators.

"I have never made a statement reflecting on the integrity of Congress," he told the committee, and was not questioned.

Was Defending Congress.

Barry had testified he was defending Congress in the article against a widespread belief it was corrupt, and had cited Johnstone's teachings.

The committee took no action on the resolution by Senator Walsh (D., Mont.), to certify the case to District of Columbia and New York state courts for criminal libel proceedings against Barry, but Chairman Norris called a special meeting for Thursday to take this up.

Amidst crowding spectators, Barry on the stand today reiterated he had no intention of attacking the senate in his magazine article only saying a few senators and representatives sold their votes.

Before Johnstone was called, the committee questioned William Chestnam, 23-year-old clerk in Barry's office and student in the professor's classes, whom the suspended official had quoted as saying the teacher taught that congress was corrupt.

Told of Lecture

In a naive manner, Chestnam told of a lecture by the professor on lobbying, in which—without expressing an opinion on the prevalence of the practice—he described alleged operations of lobbyists.

He said the professor suggested that lobbyists would talk to members of congress about bills in which they were interested and later suggest that they accept a new stock being issued by their company.

Chestnam said the professor told him he got his information from a book by Frank Kent, Washington political correspondent.

The committee on Thursday, said Norris, also will consider any suggestions for calling publishers of the New Outlook Magazine which printed Barry's article.

The recommendation for outright removal of Barry, was voted unanimously.

NATIONAL SOCIALISTS

BREAK UP MEETING

Berlin, Feb. 7 (AP)—National Socialist members of the Reichstag's standing committee for safeguarding parliamentary rights shouted anti-Semitic epithets today at Paul Loebe, who is not a Jew, halting the meeting.

Herr Loebe had hardly called the session to order when Hans Frank, a Nazi, declared that his party considered it an insult to meet under Loebe, who, he said, had in a campaign speech described Chancellor Hitler as "Adolf the Slovak."

The charge threw the meeting into an uproar. Loebe was unable to speak. The Socialists and Communists left the meeting and Frank, vice chairman, called a rump session.

The government ignored the session, sending no representatives.

MORTGAGE HOLDERS FAVOR

CONCILIATORY BOARDS

Omaha, Neb., Feb. 7 (AP)—Establishment of conciliatory boards designed to establish the reasonableness of farm foreclosures was suggested today as possible solution of the rural mortgage situation.

The suggestion came following a meeting yesterday of the representatives of companies holding $1,000,000,000 in farm mortgages, who indicated a belief that the main hope of settlement lay in creation of the conciliatory bodies.

F. T. A. STUDY GROUP

MEETING ON FRIDAY

The Study group of the Farley Parent-Teacher Association was held at the home of Mrs. R. Smith. The topic for discussion was "The Inferiority Complex." "Everyday Problems of the Everyday Child" served as a basis for the discussion. Interesting views were expressed on the causes and ways of preventing the "inferiority complex" in the child.

Treasury Receipts

Washington, Feb. 7 (AP)—Treasury receipts for February 4 were $6,521,863.71; expenditures $12,732,415.27; balance $432,331,892.71. Customs duties for four days of February were $2,302,715.75.

Democrats Will Support Lehman

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 7 (AP)—Governor Lehman has been given virtual assurance by Democratic leaders in the legislature that they will support his proposals for new taxation.

Last night's session of the legislature passed without reference to either house to the Lehman plans for raising $54,000,000 in new revenue through a retail sales tax, a gross income tax and an increase in the gasoline tax.

It was revealed, however, that the Democratic leaders at their usual Monday night conference with Mr. Lehman voluntarily indicated that their support will be thrown behind his program.

The Republican leaders have made no utterance since Assemblyman Russell G. Dunmore, the Republican majority leader, attacked the Lehman fiscal plans January 30. Dunmore assailed the proposed three-fourths of one per cent retail sales tax as a "waste of energy," and otherwise criticized the governor's recommendations.

Cantor Rosenblatt Acclaimed in London

Lovers of real music in this city and its environs are evincing interest in the concert to be given at the Jewish Community Center on February 16 by Cantor Josef Rosenblatt.

It is reported that never before has a concert audience had the opportunity to hear an artist of Cantor Rosenblatt's rank in the city of Kingston.

His appearance here presents a rare chance to hear the voice which is always likened to that of the great Caruso. Wherever he has sung, he has been greeted with rapturous enthusiasm. In London his acclaim approached heights no other concert artist has ever achieved. That is, he drew an audience of 5,000 to his farewell concert in that city in the middle of the dead season—in the month of August. Then it was said of him in the London Era: "You cannot talk about Cantor Rosenblatt's wonderful voice. That would be misleading. He has a series of voices. The lowest sounds like the bass tones of the cello. The middle one is a clear oboe-like tenor; and out of that he breaks straight into a sweet, thin falsetto—a couple of octaves of it; for all the world like the voice of a woman soprano. Each is as distinct in character as if it came out of separate larynx—though the cantor can shade artistically from one to another the way he likes, as he did in an Italian song, 'Mal d'Amore,' by Buzzi-Peccati."

His methods are as many as his voices. He has a beautifully easy, smooth legato, but often he attacks with a sort of sob in the throat. His agility—he has a perfect trill—might make the most accomplished soprano-leggero jealous. Sometimes he begins a series of florid passages in his bass-octave voice continues in tenor, and flashes away up among his octaves of head tones. Or he echoes a phrase in pianissimo falsetto to that he has just sung in tenor. And it is all wonderfully done; no wonderfully, and he is so different to look at from all the concert-singers to believe to him as a flesh-and-blood singer. Only a robot, you feel, brought to extra perfection, should be able to sing like that.

The public is cordially invited to attend. Tickets may be procured at the office of the Jewish Community Center at 97 Broadway.

Completed Objects

T. J. Comerford objected to the reading and asked what the interest was in hearing the list read. The chairman stated that it was read in answer to a motion passed at the last meeting. After considerable discussion a ruling vote was taken on a motion to have the reading continued. A good share of those present did not vote either way, but the chairman finally declared the motion carried 11 to 5, and the list was read.

Under new business the matter was again brought up and in answer to Mr. Comerford's question Ralph Mann, who had introduced the original resolution, stated that it was strictly a relief measure that he had in mind. He said that there were many married women, whose husbands were fully able to support them, teaching in the public schools, while at the same time single girls and young men who needed the positions were out of work. He felt that these people should "get the breaks." Mr. Mann particularly objected to teachers holding more than one position, teaching in day school and night school, or in part time school and to teachers whose husbands held positions with the city. He said that as a relief proposition, if single girls who need employment could teach in night school or part time school, it would help the present situation.

Mr. Mann association go on record in the matter, but after being asked to put his motion in writing, and following a consultation on the matter, withdrew the original motion and submitted one to the effect that a committee be appointed to investigate the question of employment of married women as teachers in the city schools and to report, with recommendations, at the next meeting of the association.

Efficient Teachers

During the discussion of the question Elmer E. Swart said that some of the teachers referred to were very efficient and should not be replaced by young girls. He suggested that people sent their children to school to be properly taught and were more interested in having their children taught by efficient teachers than they were in who got the job.

Chairman Ward named the following committee to investigate the matter: Ralph Mann, Elmer E. Swart, Palmer Canfield, Andrew Ferguson.

The question of the benefit of a commission form of government was discussed at some length. Palmer Canfield being called upon to make some explanation of the general working of the system. He called attention to the fact that Buffalo, the second largest city in the state, had

Taxpayers to Study Number of Married Teachers Employed

Superintendent Van Ingen Submitted List of School Teachers Employed in City Schools—Other Matters Before Taxpayers' Association.

Criticism of the fact that a number of married women are employed as teachers in the Kingston school system and the passage of a motion to investigate the whole matter; a discussion of the commission form of city government and a suggestion that Section nine of Title II of the city charter be changed making special elections mandatory in cases of certain improvements and bond issues, were among matters that took up a large portion of the time at the regular meeting of the Kingston Taxpayers' Association Monday evening.

Vice President E. P. Ward called the meeting to order shortly after eight o'clock and presided during the evening. President Terry was absent because he was in New York city. The first business was the reading of the following appointments by Mr. Terry, constituting the standing committees of the association for the year 1933:

Taxes and assessments—E. P. Ward, J. R. Schultz, Chauncey Lane, Thomas Kennedy, J. Netburn.

Relief and Welfare—Ralph Mann, T. J. Comerford, William Haver, E. T. McGill, R. McKittrick.

Budget—C. Lane, E. P. Ward, P. H. Carey.

Substitutes—Max Reben, James E. Sneed, F. Richter.

The chairman announced that President Terry had stated that at the time of the annual meeting Andrew Ferguson, who had been elected secretary, was not a member of the association and that the matter should be referred back to the nominating committee. This was done, as was also the matter of naming a new treasurer in place of Chauncey Lane, who announced his resignation. The committee retired for consultation and on its return submitted the name of Mr. Ferguson, who had become a member since the former meeting, as secretary. At the same time it was announced that Mr. Lane withdrew his resignation as treasurer. The committee's action was approved and Mr. Ferguson and Mr. Lane remain as secretary and treasurer for the coming year.

The secretary then read a communication from Superintendent of Schools B. C. Van Ingen, enclosing a complete list of the teachers employed in the city schools, with particular reference to married teachers, and showing teachers employed in part time and night schools.

Completed Objects

T. J. Comerford objected to the reading and asked what the interest was in hearing the list read. The chairman stated that it was read in answer to a motion passed at the last meeting. ## Mowers Injured In An Odd Accident

Theron B. Mowers, assistant superintendent at the city hall, was injured Monday afternoon in an odd accident when his forehead was gashed by a shower of glass from one of the doors in the building.

Mr. Mowers was in one of the rooms in the building. The door to the room is what is known as a half and half door, the upper half being of stained glass and the lower half of wood. Just as Mr. Mowers was about to open the door to leave the room the door was opened from the corridor by Ralph Harrison, of the water department, who was about to enter. As Mr. Harrison opened the door the glass in the upper half of the door suddenly split down the center, and a splinter of the glass struck Mr. Mowers in the forehead.

The accident did not prevent Mr. Mowers from continuing at work and this morning he wore a bandage over the gash.

It is a fine thing, far more whole than most of our diversions. And there is a sort of stardom in the water. If the evolution of the water, it goes far back. Savages swim naturally. Our remote ancestors may have been almost as much at home in the water as on land. The latest genealogical bulletin traces our ancestry back 100,000 years to a fish. Our blood has the saline composition of sea water, from which all life is supposed to have come.

In the largest nail-making center of the United States, wire nails have been selling recently for less than nail wire. Spikes or 20-penny nails, in carload lots, went at $2.05 a hundred-weight, while No. 6 wire in coils by the carload sold for $2.10 a hundred-weight. The nails were in kegs, too, which were worth something. It is said to be the first time in history that such a situation has occurred. Many things are occurring now for the first time in history. It is a crazy era. So far, 1933 has been a crazy year. When have so many unpredictable things occurred in one month, in American business and government, as in the January just ended? Heaven send us order and restore our wits before the year is over.

SCARED LADIES.

Liberal-minded persons, of whom there are still many in America, hardly know what to make of the widely published report of the American Legion Auxiliary, on forces "working to destroy our government just as surely as ever did the enemy in the great war."

Among the deadly organizations named are the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, the American Civil Liberties Union, the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom, the National Council for Prevention of War, the People's Lobby, the National Unemployment League, the National Popular Government League, the People's Legislative Service, the American Society for Cultural Relations with Russia, the League for Independent Political Action, and numerous others.

Among the destructive individuals is Prof. John Dewey of Columbia University, a venerable educator and philosopher, who has transformed American education and made it practical, and who is known throughout the world as a useful and distinguished American. There are also the controversial but highly respected educators, Prof. Alexander Meiklejohn of the University of Wisconsin, Prof. Paul H. Douglas, of the University of Chicago, and Prof. John Ladd, of Marquette University.

Aren't the good ladies "seeing things?" With regard to most of these men and groups, if not all, a normal American finds it hard to believe that their activities are so diabolical in purpose or in effect. The ladies, we fear, are out of step with their fellow-countrymen. Most Americans are more tolerant and less easily frightened. As for our country, it is pretty tough. Look what it has gone through since 1776. Look what it is going through now. In a peaceful and orderly way, despite a big crisis and wide difference of opinion.

TECHNOCRATIC PURPOSES.

Many people say they don't know what the Technocrats are driving at. Some say that Technocrats themselves don't know. A spokesman for one of the three groups into which these research men have now split, which calls itself the Continental Committee of Technocracy, seems to make the matter rather clear. He says he and his co-workers are simply trying to be scientific about present business problems. They are gathering information to show the effect of all this mechanical development on our present life, what it is doing to us and what we can do about it.

The Technocrats, he insists, at least in his group, are not trying to scare people. They are not preaching a gospel of fear and gloom. On the contrary, "These findings point actually to new hope, the hope that through the approach Technocracy suggests it may be possible permanently to solve the paradox of terrific want in the midst of plenty."

It seems to be a question whether the machine is a cruel tyrant grinding out the lives of men, or whether men can tame the machine, making it serve men and creating for all of us abundance and the leisure to enjoy it. It is a question of better use of labor-saving machinery, better distribution of what the machinery produces, to avoid these cruel contrasts and periodic jams. If the Technocrats can give us any help, more power to them!

FISHES

Swimming has become, as much as anything, our national sport. We go swimming in the summer more than ever before. Those who have access to sheltered pools swim the year round. More artificial pools, outdoors and indoors, are being built all the time. There will soon be one in the White House. President-elect Roosevelt's fondness for swimming will add to the popularity of the sport. His example of swimming daily in mid-winter, at his winter home in Georgia, is contagious. In the future, homes that can afford it may have swimming pools in the basement instead of the present type of recreation rooms.

CHAPTER I
MAN OF DESTINY

AGAIN Madame Le Sage bared her face in her hands as her husband pulled the trigger. For the third time the hammer fell with a harmless click, and a look of mingled disappointment, wrath, and despair clouded the handsome countenance of Lieutenant Napoleon Riccoli.

With a cheerful smile, Le Sage offered him the pistol, while Madame sat erect and watched him with the deepest interest.

"No, no! Enough of this folly. This is sheer madness. I will not do it," cried Riccoli, exhibiting the anger of fear. "I am not a dog."

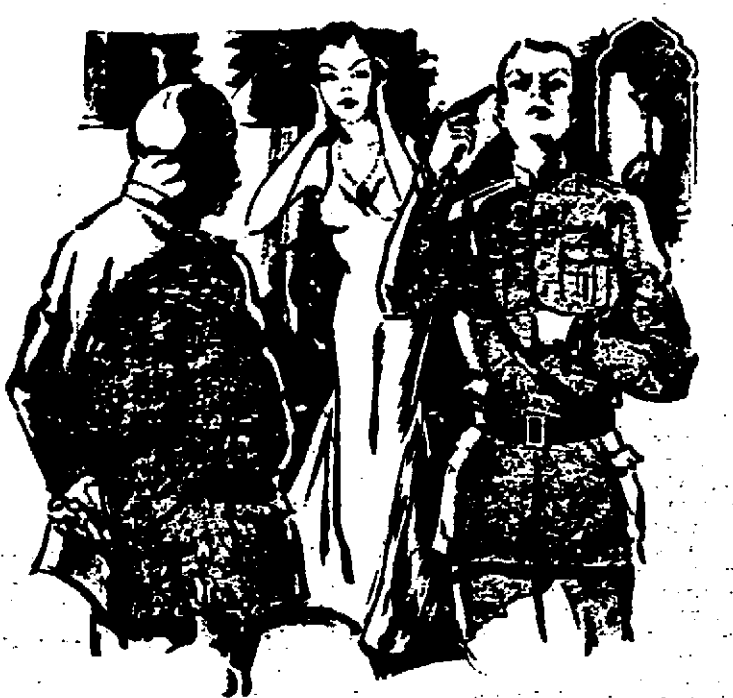

"No," agreed Le Sage. "Dogs are nice beasts."

"... and I will not die the death of a dog," continued Riccoli. "This is murder, I say."

of his head. Le Sage pulled the trigger. For the fifth time the hammer clicked harmlessly. "Now, Man of Destiny," said Le Sage, and offered the pistol, handle foremost, to Riccoli. That gentleman again placed his hands behind his back and violently shook his head. "Murder," he shouted. "As you please," replied Le Sage. "It's certainly suicide if it isn't murder, now that we've come down to number six."

"Murder, I say," cried Riccoli again, and clutched his throat. "Or suicide," agreed Le Sage. "Neither," cried Riccoli. "But surely you couldn't walk away from here, and look yourself in the face again?" asked Le Sage. "What is life worth to a man who has lost self-respect, lost the respect of his brother officers?" "No one would..." began Riccoli.

"Oh, yes, they will," interrupted Le Sage. "Everyone will. I shall tell every man I know, and my wife will tell every woman she knows." He thrust the handle of the pistol against Riccoli's chest. "Take it, man," he said, "and shoot yourself—like a man." "I won't... I will fight you with swords. I will not commit suicide

Riccoli held the pistol to his head.

"I'll give you one minute," interrupted Le Sage, glancing at his watch. "If at the end of that minute you have not taken your chance, I will shoot you—like a dog. Which will be an honor for you. Now..."

Looking more like a trapped jackal than any kind of dog, Riccoli extended a slightly trembling hand, took the pistol, and held it to his head.

His face cleared, and he smiled. "Fate has great things in store for me," he said. "Not for nothing was I born, not only in Corsica, but mark you, in Ajaccio itself!"

"Speech!" interrupted Lieutenant Le Sage, and with an angry glare at that imperturbable man, Riccoli pulled the trigger.

For the fourth time a sharp click sounded through the little room, startling, by its mighty smallness, the ears of the three protagonists of this drama.

"You see?" Riccoli smiled palely. "I am protected... I am a Man of Destiny."

"So far, so good—or so bad," observed Le Sage, and taking the pistol, turned it upon himself. "Stop," cried Riccoli. "We have had the courage to fight two rounds of your terrible duel, and that is enough. As I said before, honor is satisfied."

"Yours, or mine?" inquired Le Sage.

"Honor is satisfied, I say, and if it is not, I will agree to fight yet a third duel with you. But it shall be the duel of civilized people... of gentlemen... of men of honor... of soldiers."

"Swords, eh?"

"Yes, swords."

"You are the champion swordsmen of the Nineteenth Army Corps, one recalls," observed Le Sage. Riccoli bowed.

"Then I think we'll go on with our present effort," continued Le Sage. "In the circumstances, I think I'll trust to chance rather than skill, eh?"

And putting the pistol to the side

ing closed with the Aaronic Benediction.

The "Tendresse" prelude opened the evening service: call to worship: hymns. "More Love to Thee, O Christ," prayer by the pastor, the responses: duet, "Savior, Thy Dying Love," Mrs. Mary Moody and Viandair Moody; scripture, Second Kings, "Salvation! O the Joyful Sound!" sermon text, Second Kings, 5:14: "Love Divine, Loves Excelling," benediction: Silent prayer: chimes: "Day is Dying in the West," postlude in F.

Old Manuscript Recalls Wolfe's Attack on Quebec

One of the most interesting discoveries pertaining to the early history of Canada, writes a correspondent in the New York Times, is the original manuscript copy, bound in rough cow hide, of General Wolfe's orders in preparation for the attack on Quebec in 1759 and its capture from the French under Montcalm in the famous battle of the Plains of Abraham in which both leaders were killed.

The book contains General Wolfe's orders for the expedition up the St. Lawrence river, the siege of Quebec and his secret instructions for the landing below the cliff at what now is Wolfe's cove from which his little army ascended to the plains and victory. The first entry, made at sea, is dated May 16, 1759, and on June 8 there is a notation that General Wolfe had drawn his will leaving all his books and papers to Colonel Carleton, who was Sir Guy Carleton, his quartermaster general, afterward Lord Dorchester and governor general of Canada.

On the front of the cow-hide cover is burned in this brief inscription: "Book 1759." The orders in the first section are believed to be in the handwriting of Captain the Hon. Harvey Smyth, Fifteenth Regiment of Foot, but the writer of the latter portions is not known. Eventually the book will find a home in the national archives of Canada.

Andrew's Guild will meet at the home of Mrs. Effert on Mill Rock Road.

Change Supper Date. The turkey supper at Esopus will be held at Esopus on Thursday evening, February 16, instead of on Wednesday evening.

THE HUMAN MATTRESS—HARRY GOOD LETS A 125-LB. MAN JUMP ON HIS ABDOMEN FROM A HEIGHT OF OVER 12 FEET.

EPITAPH ON A FRENCHMAN WHO ATE TOO MUCH FISH! Can you read it?

The notes in the musical epitaph shown above read, by the sol-fa system, as follows: la re la sol la me la. In French this phonetically evolves to: la rale, la sole, l'a mis la. This French statement, translated into English, is: Ray, sole put him there. In other words, he ate too much ray and sole; hence his death.

Too old to change his own habits, but wanting his sons to lead lawful lives, Moha Ou Hammou, Morocco outlaw chief, sent his 14 sons to the French camp to surrender and ally with the French rule.

The French commander accepted the allegiance of the famous outlaw's sons, and suggested that the father too accept the French rule. To this suggestion Moha Ou Hammou replied that it was too late in his life to change. He continued as an outlaw the rest of his life and was killed by French soldiers led by one of his own sons.

The canny old chief foresaw that the tribesmen could not resist the French, and by ordering his sons to surrender he saved them from losing their property, and made sure that one of them would become chief of his tribe.

Rosendale Books Spinny Five for Saturday Night

Manager Johnny Regan of the Rosendale Firemen today announced that his basketball team will play the Spinny Radio Five of Port Ewen in the regular Rosendale cage feature Saturday night. As both teams are playing at their peak right now, and are keen rivals, a fast game is expected, also a record attendance. There will be a preliminary and dance.

Playing at home in Pythian Hall, Thursday, the Port Eweners will stack up against the Firemen, hoping to defeat the mountaineers and thus fortify themselves for the Firemen. In the overtime to the main attraction, the Spinny Aces will meet a team of suitable opponents.

Rhymer and Zech Lead DUSO Scorers

Although Kingston High is in third position in the standing of the DUSO League teams, her two regular forwards, Captain Chipe Rhymer and Zech lead the DUSO circuit in individual scoring. The local captain has 36 points and his partner 35. Mormon of Monticello, the league leader, is resting in third place with 25 points and Murray of the same outfit, another consistent basket maker, is in fifth place with 26, with Berger of Ellenville holding fourth position with 27.

There are 51 players in the scoring list and the men on the bottom with the least points are generally the members of the guarding end of the basketball game. They figure a great deal in games and sometimes play very important parts, as for instance, that two points beside his name might have been the cause of victory somewhere along the line.

And speaking of guards, Newburgh is still the weakest defensive team in the loop. It has 101 points scored against it to 66 of its own, while Port Jervis is on top of the list with 102 points scored against 101 of their opponents.

Below are the teams with their scoring for the season thus far and also the individual scorers:

Financial and Commercial

New York, Feb. 7. (AP)—Stocks dragged along on a level plane in today's market.

Tobacco again softened in spots, and there was a little more profit taking in the gold mining issues, but on the whole, price changes were negligible. General Motors regular dividend had been too widely expected to prove an important market factor, although the stock rose a fraction.

Socony Vacuum advanced fractionally, in response to its regular dividend, but other oils were barely changed. American Tobacco sagged fractionally. Rails were mostly steady to firm, with the exception of Union Pacific, which reacted nearly a point. The recently heavy utilities showed some signs of short covering. Public Service of N. J. gaining a major fraction. American Can, American Telephone, and U. S. Steel Preferred were firm, while National Biscuit and Westinghouse eased moderately.

Dividend news this week has been more encouraging than last, with General Motors ordering its regular quarterly payment of 25 cents, and Socony Vacuum announcing another quarterly disbursement of 10 cents.

The tobacco shares again responded to published reports that a further cut in wholesale cigarette prices was under consideration.

The cold snap may result in larger electric power production, and a bigger movement of coal, although the reports will not show that until next week.

International Complications

By H. IRVING KING

By H. IRVING KING

WITH the apprehension of her parents, Barbara Holden had become engaged to Benjamin Littlefield. That ought to have settled it, there should have been nothing further except the wedding bells, the old shoes and the rice. But then, on the other hand, had there not been there would have been no story. Barbara and Ben were just two wholesome, rather commonplace, young people well established in their own social world.

Then Canfield Rogers cast his eye upon Barbara and saw that she was fair. Then he investigated her father's financial standing and saw that it was fairer still. Then he began to hunt for points against Ben and stumbled across something which afforded him ghoulish glee.

Rogers and Ben had been in the same class at college and among their classmates had been a certain Harry Butterworth who had been appointed since his graduation United States consul at Porto Guifo, a little banana port on the Central American coast. Ben and Harry had been not only classmates but friends, belonged to the same fraternity, etc.

The little republic in which Porto Guifo was situated was lively all out of proportion to its size, and Harry wrote Ben such graphic accounts of the tropical scenery and of his own weird experiences that Ben, having nothing to do, took ship and went down to visit his old college chum. Having spent some time there, he came back and, a year later, fell in love with Barbara Holden.

It was after Rogers had gazed upon Barbara and upon her father's financial record and had become filled with a longing to possess them both that he met the former consul at Porto Guifo, returned home and awaiting appointment to a more important post.

"Hello, Butterworth," said Rogers. "Well, how is the rising young diplomat? Got an embassy yet?"

"Why, it's Rogers, isn't it?" replied Harry. "Ever see any of the old boys now? Good old Ben Littlefield comes from your part of the country. Do you see much of him? I haven't seen him since he paid me a visit at Porto Guifo. For the last year he has written only at rare intervals. When you see him ask him about his wife. Ask him if he has ever heard of her since they parted at Guifo? Ha! ha! That's a good story. I'll tell you how it was. You see—just then a telegram was handed to Butterworth. 'Great Scott!' he cried as he read it, 'I must try and catch the next train for Washington. Ask Ben to tell you the story of his dusky bride—Ines Castellon. Ta, ta!'"

Within a few days Rogers rang Barbara's front door bell at an hour when he was certain he would find the lovers together. They received him politely, though not enthusiastically. He was beaming, jolly, full of jokes. "Oh, by the way," said he at length. "I have just got back from New York. Met Harry Butterworth at the club. He talked a lot about you, Ben. Told me to be sure and ask you if you had heard from your wife. Ines Castellon that was, since you parted from her at Porto Guifo. Seemed quite anxious about it."

Barbara sat pale, rigid—her eyes wide and anguished. Ben looked confused at first and then said with a laugh: "Oh, that's it quite a story. 'Never mind now, old top,' replied Rogers. 'Some other time. I've delivered my message and must toddle.'"

As the door closed behind him, Ben turned and looked at Barbara. For the first time he realized the seriousness of the situation. "Barbara," said he, "what is the matter? You surely don't believe—"

"I don't know what to believe—what to think," she faltered. And then with "Oh, Ben! Oh, Ben!" she burst into tears and rushed from the room.

Ben tried to tell himself that Barbara was unreasonable. But then was she—very? He must furnish an explanation, that was clear. He went and worked the long-distance telephone, at last getting what he wanted. Then he wrote a note to Barbara saying that he would not see her again until he had a full and satisfactory explanation to offer which would be within two or three days.

On the evening of the day specified Ben called at Barbara's home. With his card was sent up that of Harry Butterworth, late consul at Porto Guifo. Barbara appeared, still pale.

Ben was at Porto Guifo there was a revolution on—usual, I am, President Castellon's daughter, was in Guifo about to embark for Panama and safety. The rebel general tried to catch her and hold her as a hostage. She took refuge in the American consulate. The revolutionary general demanded her—she as a native, not entitled to sanctuary. 'Oh, you can't have her,' said Butterworth, inspired by a happy thought. 'She has just been married to this gentleman here, an American citizen. And the wife taken the nationality of the husband.'"

"It was a lie out of whole cloth," but it went. Ben was smuggled on board the Panama steamer that night and the next morning Ben took a fruit steamer for New Orleans. The fair lady subsequently returned," concluded Harry, "and is now—what do you think? The wife of the revolutionary general who tried to kidnap her—and the general is president of the storming republic!"

All told, perhaps 150 persons were present and all came for a good time and unquestionably they had it. Refreshments were served at midnight and the variety was in full supply with enough left over for another party. There was a final season of dancing before the inevitable time for parting came, which was conducted as a grand finale by the orchestra. "Many happy returns of the day" which was lustily voiced by everyone, as it was very manifestly evident that Mr. and Mrs. Hesley had proven the part of most royal entertainers.

SAYS GROUNDHOG ADAGE IS MORE THAN PLAIN "BUNK"

West Shokan, Feb. 7.—The month of January, according to statistics, was the mildest January in the annals of New York state weather records. New Year's day was the coldest when the temperature was driven within a few degrees of the zero mark. The warmest weather occurred during the middle of the month when the mercury rose above sixty. Since groundhog day with its bright sunshine and springlike tendencies the weather became distinctly more wintry which really seems to carry rather conclusive evidence that after all, there is more than just plain "bunk" about that time-frazzled, cussed and discussed shadow adage. Last year February 2 was snowy, but at times the face of Old Sol was seen smiling through. Although the first half of the month continued along mild, leading on folks in the belief that spring was well along on the way, and that all hopes for gathering ice had gone glimmering, there was ice for harvesting and winter weather aplenty during the intervening weeks until April. In fact that long to be remembered blizzard and snow blockade occurred during the last week in March.

SUGGESTION CHAMBER OF COMMERCE SOLICIT FORD

Editor, Freeman:

I wish most respectfully to call the attention of the Chamber of Commerce of Kingston to the newspaper reports to the statement that Henry Ford will "farm out" to towns and cities the making of all small parts that go into the production of his automobiles. He has concluded, so it is stated, that it will be a great help to a large number of plants that are idle just now and to a great extent help these plants to once more start up and give employment to a large number of skilled mechanics in the finished automobile. Allow me to respectfully call the attention of the Chamber of Commerce of Kingston that it might be well to get in touch with Mr. Ford or his representatives, and solicit, or better still, to apply for a share of this work by pointing out that Kingston has just the plants fitted for the work. Other cities are also hustling for this opportunity to start up idle plants and it is hoped that our Chamber of Commerce will make an effort to secure a share and thus start up some of our idle plants. This cannot be done without a strenuous effort on the part of the Chamber of Commerce. Mr. Ford will not drop the work at your door. Now is the time to get busy. Kingston has the facilities and undoubtedly if an early effort is made, there seems to be no reason why Kingston could not get a share of the work. Now is the time and it is up to the Chamber of Commerce to make the effort.

Dr. G. J. Lawrence
To Attend Annual Dinner of Legion

DR. GEORGE J. LAWRENCE

The committee having charge of the arrangements for the Third Annual Stag Dinner of the Ulster County American Legion, scheduled to be held at Golden Rule Inn on Tuesday evening, February 28, has received a favorable reply to its invitation to State Department Commander Dr. George J. Lawrence. Dr. Lawrence in accepting the invitation states that he is pleased to again come to the stag party for he had such a pleasant time at the first annual affair two years ago.

Maurice Stember, department adjutant, has also signified his acceptance of the invitation of the committee and he also will be one of the honored guests.

Dr. Lawrence of Flushing, elected New York state commander of the American Legion at Brooklyn on August 27, 1932, is reputed to be the first member of the Rainbow Division (the Fighting Sixty-Ninth) to have held a New York state office in the legion.

Dr. Lawrence has had a long, outstanding military career. Enlisting in the New York National Guard as private, 17th Separate Company, on December 28, 1908; commissioned first lieutenant, Medical Corps, 10th Infantry, on July 17, 1911; three years later promoted to the rank of captain.

On June 23, 1916, he was transferred to the old 12th Infantry, and on March 16, 1917, the day before St. Patrick's Day, he was transferred to the Fighting Irish outfit, the Sixty-Ninth.

A year later promotion again came his way in the form of a majority, and he served as medical officer of the universally known military outfit overseas from October 31, 1917, until April 21, 1919. While with the old 12th Infantry he served on the Mexican border from June 25, 1916, until March 10, 1917. He is now a lieutenant colonel in the reserves.

Dr. Lawrence has been active with the American Legion practically since its inception. He was the organizer and commander for two years of his own post, the William A. Leonard Post, No. 422, of Flushing, Queens county commander in 1923, chairman of the state hospital and welfare committee in 1924, chairman of the state committee on the pilgrimage to the tomb of the Unknown Soldier in 1931, and again chairman of the state hospital and welfare committee in 1932.

such a form of city government and that the nearest city to Kingston using the system was Newburgh, but stated that there were various forms of commission government. Mr. Comerford stated that the subject had been brought up in Kingston at one time and that a committee headed by V. B. Van Wagoner had made a thorough investigation of the matter. He had a lot of respect for the commission form of government, but said that it all depended upon the man placed in charge.

To Study Problem

On motion the committee on legislative and city affairs was directed to make a study of the problem, with special reference to the city of Kingston and to make a report at a later meeting. MAKES WOMEN
LOSE FAT

Miss Ben E. Balch of Dayton, Ohio, writes: "I weighed 130 so started to take Brachet. I never was so satisfied as when I weighed myself the first morning I lost 7 pounds. I just bought my 2nd jar and am down to 105—am still taking them and never felt better in my life." (June 7, 1932).

To take off fat—take one half teaspoon of Brachet's Fat-Loss in a glass of hot water in the morning before breakfast. One bottle that lasts 4 weeks costs but a few cents. Get it at Dr. McBride Drug Store or any drugstore in America. If this first bottle fails to convince you this is the SAFE and sure way to lose fat—your money gladly returned. That's because Brachet's Fat-Loss is the only fat-losser that makes women lose fat.
